WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

Government Planing a Gigantic Blow at Monster Evil.

The government of the United States has turned its whole detective machinery toward unearthing and destroying the white slave traffic, as it exists between the States or between foreign countries and the United States.

It is the plan of the department of justice to make one sweep on all the large cities at once, and strike, if possible, one staggering blow at the traffic.

The government's authority comes from the Mann act, imposing upon the interstate aspects of the crime penalties of five years' imprisonment or a fine of $5,000.

According to information already received at Washington, Pittsburgh is the centre of the trade, though clues discovered in Chicago make that city an important substation in the circulation of girls and women through the country.

The first swoop, it is intended, will be started simultaneously in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago and San Francisco.

Officers at ports of entry have been asked to increase their vigilance and to inspect female immigrants with peculiar care. Meanwhile officers at inland cities will watch and report the movements of all suspects.

In New York some months ago District Attorney Whitman made an effort to trap some of the men back of the trade in that city, but they escaped. The only way to capture the offenders, according to the agents of the Department of Justice, is to have the authorities of all the large cities act together.

The government agents will not try to "clean up" the various cities. They will simply go after the leaders of the syndicate.

In Chicago some arrests have been made but these are only the beginning of the general campaign, it is said. In several cases it was found that men of that city had brought some of the lines developed in Chicago by these arrests can be traced throughout the country.

Some of the lines developed in Chicago by these arrests can be traced throughout the country, women from France.

Romantic Career of B. W. Cooper.

Ben. W. Cooper, the newly elected governor of Tennessee, was found on the streets of Knoxville less than 40 years ago. The waif, whose parentage is not known, was committed to the care of an orphan asylum, where he received his early training. When he was 10 years old he attracted the attention of Capt. Hooper, of Newport, Tenn., who gave him an education and his name, and before he was 21 he had graduated with distinction. While he has achieved some distinction in his home county, having been sent to the legislature for two terms, Hooper was not known generally in the State before he was nominated as the Republican candidate for governor. He is a successful lawyer and considered wealthy.

She is a School Teacher But She Has No Pupils.

Abilene, Kans.—Miss Annie Amiller has finished a month's school "teaching" without a single pupil. She has now made a new contract, draws $20 a month and does not go to the school house at all, though she has promised to appear if any pupils attend.

Miss Amiller was engaged as teacher in district a mile north of the city. Only a dozen children of school age live in the district, but the parents keep up the district to prevent its territory being annexed to Abilene, which would increase the taxes.

On the first day not a pupil attended, and this continued for a month, the young teacher waiting patiently. Then Miss Amiller called the board together. She had a seven months contract and could enforce it by going to the school house every day.

The board compromised on $20 and said she need not come.

DEATH IN QUICKSANDS.

Body of Unknown Negress Was Found Mired to Waist.

An unknown negro woman apparently 65 or 70 years of age, was found about 11 o'clock yesterday, mired to the waist in the muddy bed of a little creek which flows into the Congaree river 300 yards above the Granby landing. How long she had been in the quicksand or how she got there is not known. The body was discovered by two white men.

The banks of the creek at the point where the dead woman was found are very steep. The place is not within calling distance of any house and it was merely by chance that the men saw the body as they were passing. It is possible that the old negress met a lingering death from starvation or cold. There were no bruises on the body or any indication that violence had been used.

A little distance down the creek was a foot-log. The woman may have slipped down the steep banks of the stream while hunting for the crossing. The struggles of the woman in her frantic efforts to crawl to safety had disturbed the mud all around the place where the body was found.

A few feet away from the body was a basket containing a dozen unshucked ears of corn which she had evidently been carrying when she fell into the creek.

The woman wore a man's coat and a faded skirt. She had a plain gold ring on the middle finger of her left hand.

Coroner Walker was notified that the body had been found about 12 o'clock. Six negro men worked for half an hour under the coroner's directions before the body could be pulled out of the mud. It was taken to the undertaking establishment of C. A. Ferguson on Lady street, where it is held for identification. —Columbia State.

The First Printer.

When Faustus had printed off in 1460 a number of copies of the Bible he undertook the sale of them in Paris, where printing was then unknown. As he sold his copies for sixty crowns, while the scribes demanded five hundred for their manuscripts, he created universal astonishment; but when he produced copies as fast as they were wanted, and lowered the price to thirty crowns, all Paris was in agitation. The uniformity of the copies greatly increased the wonder; information was given to the police against him as a magician; his lodgings being consequently searched and a great number of copies found, they were seized. The red ink with which they were embellished was supposed to be his blood, and it was seriously adjudged that he was in league with the devil, and it is presumed that if he had not fled, he would have shared the fate of those whom the superstitious judge in those days condemned for witchcraft. —Jewish Messenger.
